DBRS Selects Fusepoint for Disaster Recovery Services

21st April 2005

Fusepoint Managed Services, a provider of outsourced IT services and managed applications, yesterday announced that it has been selected by Dominion Bond Rating Service (DBRS), a global rating agency, to implement and support a fully mirrored high-availability disaster recovery solution.

Fusepoint's Toronto-area facility will serve as one of two live production environments that will power DBRS's mission-critical applications while guaranteeing uninterrupted site availability and uptime through a hot clustered environment.

"Organizations need to realize the hard and soft costs of downtime," said Robert Offley, president and CEO, Fusepoint Managed Services. "Not only is there a direct impact to the bottom-line when critical applications are down, there is also a negative impact to your corporate reputation. It's clear that DBRS is a forward-thinking organization that understands the importance of keeping their business and Web site operating even in a crisis. They understand that at the end of the day, it is more cost effective to be proactive than reactive."
